• Derivatives (Future and Options)

Derivative investment involves investing in financial contracts that gain their worth using the underlying assets. Here, an asset could be currencies, stocks, exchange rates, indices, and even rates of interest. Derivative investors will earn profit by betting on the future worth of involved assets. Future and Options are two key types of derivatives that 4R Investments handle.

- A future derivative is a forward contract that involves two parties that agree to transact an asset on a fixed price and its future value.
- Options derivatives are the contracts between a writer and a buyer. The writer grants the buyers rights to buy or sell any derivative at a fixed price and on a specific date.

Whether you want to deal in future derivatives or options derivatives, 4R Investments will help you make data-driven decisions.

• Mutual Funds

Mutual funds are your key to financial stability if you handle them right. One of the most widely used investment vehicles, mutual funds are funded by shareholders and are fully managed. The involved shareholders trade in multiple holdings and define the goals of the fund.

Based on the assets a fund handles, mutual funds are of various kinds. For instance, equity funds deal in stocks and equity-related assets, while a hybrid fund will distribute money in equity and debt assets.

Either way, mutual funds are famous for providing sustaining financial growth. With long-term investments, one can build great wealth.
